My darling Ettil,

We are just back from Killed, so this letter won't go till tomorrow. I have just heard of the Dublin business, and hope my darling that you are all quite safe and will take care to keep away from any part of the town in which a search might suddenly start. It is fearful to think of such a thing happening in Ireland, it is disgraceful but please God it is now well in hand. Well my old girl I hope to get a letter from you today, did not get any last night on my return. I am In the name and hope that you are all the same. I will finish this letter up now, dearest, and then all being well write you again later on. With fondest love and kisses, my dear girl to yourself ever kids.

Ever your love,

Tommy
